

California and West Coast Fires: Direct Adjusting and Reinsurance Reviews

In California, nearly 19,000 firefighters have been battling 28 major wildfires, which have left 26 people dead and over 6,400 structures destroyed. For those who have avoided the flames, smoke from the fires has choked the air and kept people inside. The continued risk of future fires has forced partial power shutoffs for thousands of California residents. Since the start of 2020, wildfires in California have burned over 3.2 million acres of land.
